Title: A Play, Preface

Author: Lenora of Yew

Hereafter is a play of the history of Paxlair;
its creation, and its liveliness when Britannia was young. The play requires three actors (two of which will have more than one role).

-Chapter One-

The Characters

The characters are as follows:

The Band, The Mayor,
The God, Seer Daemeon,
and The Citizen.

Also, one 'Understudy.'
The actor known as 'The Band' will represent all of the original members of the band, both prominent and elusive.

This same actor will represent 'Seer Daemeon' later in the story, after a change of costume.

As 'Seer Daemeon' the actor will represent Seer Daemeon as we knew him when he gave his mortal soul to save the Spring of Knowledge.

The actor known as 'The Mayor' will represent all mayors known to Paxlair throughout its history.

This same actor will represent 'The Gods' later in the play, after a change of costume.

This actor will represent all Gods who were present for the building of the city of Paxlair, and all Gods involved in the quest to cleanse the Spring.

Citizen' will represent all citizens of Paxlair from its beginning days to the present, and in certain instances will stand for particular citizens, such as Lady Winmere when she gives the Spring
Water to the God.

The 'Understudy' should learn the parts for all of the other roles as best he or she can, and this understudy should also have access to the script and to the costumes should an actor fall ill before the performance.

-Chapter Two-

The Setting

The stage should be set to look like the front of the mage tower. There should be a sign (such as a book on a pedastal) next to some 'steps' at upstage center, which will represent the entrance into the Mage Tower. In front of this should be a prop to represent The Spring (downstage center) with benches on either side to represent the benches which surround the trees in the park around The Spring. Potted plants should substitute the actual trees, leaving plenty of space open on the stage for the actors to maneuver.

-Chapter Three-

Costumes

The Band:
This character will be dressed as a warrior of The Band might have been. His behaviours should represent those of one with a frontier-man spirit.
The Mayor:
The Mayor character should be dressed as the first Mayor of Paxlair, Winfield. He should be dressed to resemble Winfield in his youth, with a black staff.
The God:
This character should wear a blue robe to resemble the Gods of times past.

Seer Daemeon:
This character should be dressed as close to the real Seer Daemeon
as possible.

The Citizen:
This character should be
dressed as a female with a feathered cap prop.
